

Tenant Safety!

The house You're Letting out could become a Home for Criminals.....

- Keep the complete Record of Your Tenants.
- Have the identity and bonafide of the person established before letting out your house to him. Note down his address and intimate the fact to the nearest police station. If he was staying at some other place check up from his earlier landlord if what he says is correct.
- Never accept gifts from strangers, nor parcels delivered which were not ordered.
- Be suspicious of change of postman, milkman or other regular delivery personnel.
- A dog is an asset for home security. A barking dog will discourage intruders and also warn you of their presence. A stranger's door bell without barking of the dog is a suspect. Look for the dog before answering the door.
- Inform the police of the presence of any suspicious vehicle or person near your home. Note the physical characteristics of the persons, description and registration number of such vehicles.
- Don't ignore any suspicious incident or person in the vicinity. Inform police about them. Dial 100, In case of any Suspicious Activity.
